

Sarah Reginelli is a dedicated and experienced leader in urban revitalization and economic development. Sarah was appointed President of Capitalize Albany Corporation and CEO of the City of Albany Industrial Development Agency and Capital Resource Corporation in 2014 to lead the City of Albany's economic development efforts through transformational real estate development, targeted business and project assistance, and strategic planning with a skilled team of nine professionals. During her tenure, Capitalize Albany has assisted more than $1 billion of investment, secured more than $40 million in grant funding and led diverse projects like jump-starting more than 1,000 downtown residential conversions, transforming the Park South neighborhood, and converting underutilized highway infrastructure into the Albany Skyway.

Sarah has worked in community redevelopment for more than fifteen years, previously serving as Director of Economic Development for Capitalize Albany and Principal Planner for the City of Albany. In her role with the Capital City she specialized in neighborhood revitalization, plan development and implementation and community engagement – during which she is proud to have earned recognition as Outstanding Public Official in 2012 from Albany's Neighborhood Resource Center and national recognition for her development and execution of the Albany 2030 public participation strategy.

Sarah serves on the Board and Executive Committee of the New York State Economic Development Council and on the Board of Directors of the Albany Convention Center Authority. She is active in the community and serves on numerous boards and advisory committees including Discover Albany and the Central Avenue Business Improvement District. In 2015 she was named to Albany Business Review's 40 Under 40 as a young professional who demonstrate business acumen, leadership skills and community involvement.

She has earned a master's degree in urban geography from the University of Miami and bachelor's degrees in public relations and geography from Syracuse University. As a transplant, she is delighted to have made a home in Albany with her husband and two children.
