Introduction

Albany City Code § 133-78.6 mandates that the

The Department of Fire, Emergency and Building Services shall submit a quarterly report not later than January 15, April 15, July 15 and October 15 of each year to the Mayor and Common Council listing all buildings in the City declared vacant under the provisions of [Albany City Code § 133-78.1 et. seq.], the date upon which they were declared vacant and whether a vacant building registration and vacant building plan has been filed for the building. The report shall additionally include a list of all previously declared vacant buildings, which are no longer subject to the provisions of this article.

This is to be a report on buildings registered by their owners on the City of Albany Vacant Building Registry. It is not a report on all vacant buildings in the City. The vacant building registry, in its current form, has several features which prevent it from being a complete survey of all vacant buildings in the City.

The vacant building registry ordinance exempts from registration buildings which are secured by normal means and are in compliance with code. Once a building qualifies for registration, its owner must register the building. This isn't something most vacant building owners are eager to do. This is not only due to the registration fee and the fact that most vacant building owners have abandoned the building. Vacant building registration calls for a lengthy and difficult application, a $10,000 cash bond, and commits the owner to public disclosure of the vacant building's address in this report, therefore exacerbating the risk that the building will be "stripped" or occupied illegally.

Regardless of the numerous disincentives to registration, the Department of Buildings and Regulatory Compliance staff regularly cite property owners for failure to register vacant buildings. Ideally the property owner complies voluntarily but as a result of the disincentives discussed above, this is relatively rare.

Where compliance is not voluntary, a time-intensive court process must be initiated. This involves, among other things, identifying and locating the building's owner, a particularly difficult task in the context of vacant buildings. Once the owner is identified, then BRC staff need to draft court papers and coordinate a prosecution of the building owner with corporation counsel. While we are working to make this processes easier and more efficient, not least of all by employing a paralegal to oversee the Department's prosecutions, this has historically been a time intensive task and a barrier to achieving compliance.

The vacant building registry is still a useful tool in monitoring vacant buildings in the City of Albany and does help offset the costs imposed by these buildings and the communities they're found in. It may however be time to reevaluate the registry based on our experience with it and the experiences of other cities to see how it can be improved upon to better address the vacant building problem as it exists today.

Vacant Building Registration Efforts

The Department of Building and Regulatory Compliance staff processed citations against 635 vacant buildings in the year 2016. This accounts for nearly half of the suspected vacant buildings in the City. We also took in approximately $125,075.00 in vacant building registration revenue to date and levied a large number of fees for failure to register and for miscellaneous vacant-building related code violations.

These successes came despite substantial turnover within the Department in 2016. Four of our eight code enforcement officer positions were vacant at some point during the year. One of the new hires received the training necessary to issue code violations on their own in late April. The remaining three only completed their training in October. We faced an additional challenge in filling the position of Deputy Director of Code Enforcement in that we were not able to hire someone for that job until early June.

Notwithstanding, the Department expanded on its relationship with the Albany Fire Department and Police Departments as partners in its effort to mitigate the costs imposed by vacant buildings in the City of Albany.

In April of 2016, the Albany Fire Department undertook the vacant building placarding program. Pursuant to this program, Albany Fire Department personnel will evaluate each of the City's vacant buildings twice per year for structural integrity and post a warning, a red "X", to first responders on buildings which are unsafe to enter. In addition to posting the red "X"s, the Albany Fire Department staff will enter citations for failure to register as vacant and for violations of the City Code which our staff will follow up on for enforcement purposes. As of this writing, approximately 635 buildings have been inspected with 174 of those having found to be occupied.

The Albany Police Department has also provided the Department with assistance in locating absentee property owners, resulting in more effective prosecutions forcing vacant property owners to address issues at their property.

Future Registration Efforts

Now that the Department has achieved almost full staffing levels with respect to our code enforcement officers and with the implementation of our new software package for our code enforcement activities, our intention is to reinstate a proactive internal vacant building registry. This will enable the Department to more systematically track and address vacancy and prevent the deterioration of these buildings instead of having to rely on building owners themselves to provide information about their properties. It's worth noting that our Deputy Director of Code Enforcement, Rick LaJoy, has particular expertise in the area of vacant building management having managed the County of Albany's vacant building stock for several years before coming to work for the City of Albany.

On August 19, 2016, the City of Albany applied to the NYS Attorney General's Office for a grant of $250,000 to be dispersed over the course of two years to address our vacant and abandoned building problem. On October 11, 2016, the NYS Attorney General's Office announced that the City of Albany had been awarded the full $250,000 applied for. The money will be used to hire a neighborhood stabilization coordinator who will work closely with the Buildings Department, Fire Department, and Corporation Counsel to reevaluate and overhaul our vacant building registration program and to position the City in such a way as to take the greatest advantage possible of the new Neighborhood Relief Act. As of this writing the Department of Buildings and Regulatory Compliance is actively seeking candidates for this new position and hopes to have the position filled as soon as practicable after funds are released by the Attorney General's Office.

The Neighborhood Relief Act was recently passed into law and provides, among many other things, two key reforms that provide the City with additional tools in dealing with vacant buildings. First, it establishes a state-wide registry of buildings which are in foreclosure and have been abandoned. This list is shared with and can be used by local municipalities to monitor their vacant building problem. It provides, importantly, updated contact information and helps to identify buildings which are vacant due to foreclosure as opposed to some other reason. Second, it provides municipalities with explicit authority to bring legal action against a foreclosing entity as opposed to a foreclosed-upon owner, in the event of a code violation. Working with the neighborhood stabilization coordinator, the Department of Buildings & Regulatory Compliance will make the most of the opportunities presented by this new law and do so in a way that is scalable and self-sustaining.

Mayor Sheehan's budget also provided for the hiring of a paralegal to oversee code violation prosecutions and to act as a bridge between the Department of Buildings & Regulatory Compliance and Corporation Counsel's Office. This will dramatically improve our ability to track down and prosecute the owners of vacant buildings. As of this writing, we are, as in the case of the neighborhood stabilization coordinator, actively seeking candidates for this position.

The long awaited implementation of our software overhaul will also dramatically increase our ability to track vacant buildings and their owners and pursue compliance with the numerous code violations present in these buildings. With the implementation of this software expected by March of next year, we will have to account for a period of learning and adjustment before we can harness the opportunities presented by the software. Once this has been complete, however, we will reap substantial benefits.

The Department will also continue to build on our relationships with the Albany Fire and Police Departments to more systematically and effectively monitor vacant buildings in the City and to impose costs on the owners of such buildings sufficient to impel those owners to return the properties to productive use.

Vacant Building Registry

As called for in Albany City Code §133-78.6, what follows is a list of all properties whose owners have registered their buildings on the vacant building registry. Of 1054 properties on this list, 124 have active registrations as of this writing. We have, to the best of our ability, provided the status of the properties by cross-referencing our emergency demolitions, regularly permitted private demolitions, permit and ROP grants. You will see that all the properties have been categorized as “V” (vacant), “NLV” (no longer vacant) or “Demolished”. Where we had positive evidence of rehabilitation or reoccupation (a closed post-registration building permit or ROP grant) we have marked the property as no longer vacant. Where our records indicated that the property has been demolished, we have marked that property as “demolished”. All others have been marked “vacant”. As submission of a vacant building plan is a condition of registration, vacant building plans have been submitted for these properties.

Conclusion

Vacant buildings remain a problem for the City of Albany and will remain so for the foreseeable future. The Department of Buildings and Regulatory Compliance will continue to take point on this problem to make use of all the resources at its disposal, including the vacant building registry, to mitigate the problem. In 2016 we have developed new avenues of collaboration with the Albany Fire Department, Department of General Services, and Police Department which will yield substantial dividends in the months and years to come. We look forward to the day when vacant buildings are no more than a manageable nuisance.
